RedRover Teams with Safe Haven to Help Domestic Violence Shelter Expand Pet-Friendly Space

Maricopa County, Arizona (February 27 - March 3, 2019) – RedRover is teaming up with Safe Haven, an initiative of The Jackson Galaxy Project, which is a Signature Program of GreaterGood.org, to help domestic violence shelter Sojourner Center expand and enhance its onsite pet-friendly spaces.

RedRover awarded Sojourner Center its first Safe Housing grant in 2014, enabling the shelter to become pet-friendly for domestic violence survivors. This second Safe Housing grant allows them to make their space even more comfortable and functional for furry family members. Safe Housing grants provide the funding for domestic violence shelters to create pet-friendly, co-sheltering spaces.

RedRover President and CEO Nicole Forsyth said, “Too often domestic violence victims are afraid to leave their abuser for fear of what may happen to their beloved pet. Creating pet-friendly domestic violence shelters breaks down their barriers and saves more lives.”

Safe Haven strives to provide pet-friendly housing options for at-risk people requiring either temporary emergency or long-term transitional housing with their beloved pets.

“Creating safe places for victims and their pets is beyond rewarding," said Bryna Donnelly, Director of Safe Haven. “We are so happy to have the opportunity to help.”

RedRover also supports domestic violence shelters by sending their volunteers to help drive Safe Haven’s projects, designs and construction expertise. Over six days the combined team will build a cat patio, aka “catio,” renovate a cat room and a dog room, and add misters to outdoor kennel areas to keep the dogs cool in the summer. RedRover Responders volunteers are travelling from California, Utah and Arizona to help with this special shelter build.

“When my boys and I learned that we could bring our dogs to Sojourner Center, I took a huge breath and knew we were all going to be okay,” said a Sojourner Center participant.
